

Innsbruck to Venice

From the Austrian mountains to the Adriatic

This cycle tour from Innsbruck to Venice follows ancient trade routes and goes from Innsbruck, the capital of the Tyrol region to the city of Verona which is famous for its festivals. The tour continues beyond Verona to finish in Venice.

Several old railway tracks and dam pathways have been converted into modern cycle paths. Therefore, you can enjoy the impressive towns and mountain views as you ride on traffic-free paths. The fascinating cities of Brixen, Bolzano, and Trento are also home to wonderful cultural history.

At the top of the Brenner Pass at 1,370 meters of altitude appears almost alpine and in Brixen, orchards and vineyards dominate the natural scenery. At the Salurner Klause, you will arrive in a more traditional Italian setting with its Mediterranean flora and fauna. On this long-distance cycling holiday, you will always find a lot of variety - whether nature, culture, or cuisine, this tour has something to offer everyone!

Highlights of the Innsbruck to Venice tour via Verona cycling holiday

- The "Golden Roof" in Innsbruck: Strolling, shopping and enjoying yourself is excellent in the old town of Innsbruck. Between the Anna Column, Ottoburg and what is probably the city's best-known landmark, the "Golden Roof", you can not only explore many sights.
- South Tyrolean wine and fruit: Apple-growing areas whose enticing scent makes the blossoms in spring even more special and the harvest in autumn a real experience. After a drive along the countless vines, how about a tasting?

- Trento Cathedral Square: How about a Sprizz and a plate of antipasti after the stages you have covered? The perfect location for this is the delightful Cathedral Square in Trento, where culture and architecture create a beautiful overall picture.
- By bike around the Arena di Verona: The third largest preserved amphitheatre in the world offers cultural delights. Concerts and operas are now held where gladiators used to fight.
